“ Steve was the first guy I met when I moved to Florida at the old Stone Crab. We chatted, and he was the lease aggressive of the patrons, so once we shot some pool n chatted, he asked me out. Then it was conversation n shooting pool that we had in common for awhile, that was 1981. I wasn't a bad shot on the green but he was happy to give me pointers. I learned allot from him on that subject. We collaborated on a project that resulted in one of v the best things, my Janel. From there on our friendship was rocky but we tried to be friends through the last 29 years, it wasn't always easy. I agree his love for building model cars, fishing n his dogs were his passion. He became less a people person when he lost his parents. He never tried to be something he wasn't. Even though he was a man with little to say, he stayed under the radar. He lived life on HIS terms. May he rest in peace.
